“Cure for Cancer” Narcotics Investigation Results in Arrest

July 26, 2016

On July 25, 2016, detectives from the Prince William-Manassas-Manassas Park Narcotics Task Force concluded a two-month investigation into a malpractice operation being conducted at the Integrated Health and Wellness Medial Practice located at 9300 Forest Point Cir in the City of Manassas (20110). In May 2016, Manassas City Police initially received a tip that the accused was allegedly operating a medical practice without a license and supposedly providing a “cure for cancer”. The information received was turned over to the joint Narcotics Task Force for further investigation. In June, an undercover detective was used in the investigation during which they purchased the alleged medication from the accused. During the consultation, the accused discouraged traditional cancer treatments and made fraudulent statements to sell his medication for approximately $1,200 per bottle. On July 25, detectives obtained and executed search warrants at the home of the accused, his practice, and a P.O. box which the accused used to ship his medications. As a result of the searches, medicine, additional ingredients to produce more drugs, and approximately $17,000 were recovered. The medicine being sold by the accused was collected for further analysis by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Following the investigation, the accused, identified as Peter Bodunrin ADENIJI, was arrested without incident. Information obtained during the course of the investigation indicated that the accused may have had patients across the United States and internationally. Anyone who believes he or she may have been a victim in this case is asked to call 703-686-6522. The investigation continues.
